60 new homes in '64

Waveland building tops half million

Sixty new homes valued at over half a million dollars helped swell Waveland's 1964 building permit total to a record $556,050, almost $180,000 more than the previous year.

Half year returns gave indication of new peaks in town construction when reports in June 30, listed $229,000 in residential permits, $2,850 in commercial additions and alterations and $30,750 for residential improvement. This $263,500 figure for six months was $81,000 ahead of the $182,500 for the same period in 1963.

Second six month returns held firm with 47 permits issued to cover $280,000 in residential construction and $12,550 in improvement alterations and additions to both commercial and residential buildings.

Value of construction has grown steadily in Waveland, since the town started keeping records for the bureau of the census in 1959. In 1959 permits amounted to $130,000; in 1960 to $125,300; 1961, $118,075; 1962, $243,700 and 1963, $376,500.

Permits for the last six months of 1964 are as follows: Ward 1--dwellings, McDonald Realty, two on Lakeside Drive; John J. McDonald, one

A 10,220-foot railroad bridge over the Bay of St. Louis, estimated to cost $4.9 million, was approved by Louisville and Nashville directors meeting in New York last Thursday.

Of concrete and steel construction, the bridge will contain a 260 foot through truss swing span on concrete piling. Approach spans will be of pre-stressed concrete.

Under consideration by L and N for many years, construction is provisionally scheduled to commence late this summer and will require about two years to complete.

To be built by private contractors, final designs, now being prepared by the railway's bridge department, must be approved by the U. S. Corps of Army Engineers. A public hearing may be called if sufficient objection is raised from water navigation standpoint.

Without information as to when bids could be called, L and N officials in discussing variations of design Wednesday said no provision for traffic overpass on Beach

Boulevard had been incorporated into present plans. No additional property purchases are contemplated even though the new structure is to be built 60 feet to the south of the existing bridge. The curving nature of the unit overpass will place joining trackage more or less in the same location as present rail.

Overpass speculation originated across from a report that the new bridge would be built 15 feet higher than at present. This according to L and N officials represents misapprehension over the whole surface, bearing in mind that the Bay St. Louis west end of the bridge is already considerably higher than the Henderson Point end.

The present open deck timber pile span bridge, built in 1899, is vulnerable to fire and storms. The hurricane of 1947 resulted in an entire new deck being required. Fires, the last taking place in 1960 have also ravished their share of damage.

Circuit court ends busy term

Three indictments returned at previous terms of court were passed to the files while another was returned and sentence imposed before the January term of Circuit Court commencing last week with a sizeable number of civil cases also disposed of.

Passed to the files were charges against Joe Dobson, indicted in January, 1964, on burglary and larceny; Joseph Marion Hill, indicted last January on child desertion, and Dave Anderson, charged last May on rape.

Matt Ballatin, indicted in September, 1962, on a charge of embezzling $1,600 from Radio and Television whose case was passed to the files last May, had his case reinstated. He pleaded guilty this term to embezzling less than $25 and was fined $1,000 and one year in jail, suspended on condition of good behavior except for $300 to be paid by Feb. 5.

Appeals by Ramsey Smith and Vance Henry were dismissed with writs of procedendo on charges of operating trucks with improper brake stickers and cars with improper tags.

One charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor against Homer L. Gordy was passed and another, on noisiness, was postponed to one year on each of three morals charges last week.

On the civil docket, a jury verdict totaling $5,300 was returned in favor of Johnson.

Theme chosen for Carnival

Can You Imagine is the overall theme selected for floats entering this year's March Grand parade, March 2, sponsored by the North Bay Elementary PTA-Teacher Assn.

Prospective parade floats are requested to register early with Chairman Mrs. Robert Van at 467-1946.

The King, queen and court will be selected from among eighth grade pupils. Mrs. Harry Schott, court chairman, has called a meeting for 2 p.m. today at North Bay for float group instruction. Floats should be ready to enter parade area by 10 a.m. on parade day.

The party sponsored by the North Bay Elementary PTA-Teacher Assn. will be held at the school on Friday, Jan. 29, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Construction of a four lane highway as far as the weighting scales on U. S. 90 starting shortly after July 1 was promised by John D. Smith, highway commissioner for the southern district, in a talk to Bay St. Louis Rotary club yesterday.

Smith also said that the first construction of Interstate 10 in Mississippi would be in Hancock County and estimated the first contract would be let this fall. He pointed out that this differs from the normal procedure of beginning construction in the more populous area, in this case Harrison County.

Something over $1,000,000 has been set aside for the U. S. 90 project. This accounts for more than half of such funds available for the Hattiesburg district of 16 counties.

No funds, however, according to the commissioner are in sight for carrying out the four-laning all the way to Rt. 49 and from there to the interchange with I-10, when that is completed.

In addition, Smith said he thought 603 should be four-laned from its interchange with I-10 to U. S. 90, but again no funds are available.

He was introduced by Dan M. Russell, Jr.

Coast Power gets $1.3 million loan

Coast Electric Power Assn. this week was awarded a $1,368,000 loan by the Rural Electrification Administration for expansion of its facilities in Hancock, Pearl River and Harrison Counties.

The funds will be used for development of 161 miles of distribution lines to serve 2,030 new consumers to meet continuing growth in the area. The program also calls for 12 miles of 46 kilovolt transmission lines and two new substations at Carriere and Nicholson.

J.W. Watts, Jr., of Coast Electric, said the work will be undertaken over the next two years and is part of the association's continuing improvements.

The transmission line will run from near Picayune to the vicinity of Necaise Crossing and will be operated at distribution voltage until establishment of a sub-station is required.

Announcement of the loan was made by U.S. Senators James Eastland and John Stennis and Rep. William M. Colmer.

Singing River EPA at Lucedale got a $1,299,000 loan for 182 miles of lines to serve 1,300 new consumers.

United Fund elects 11 to board Friday

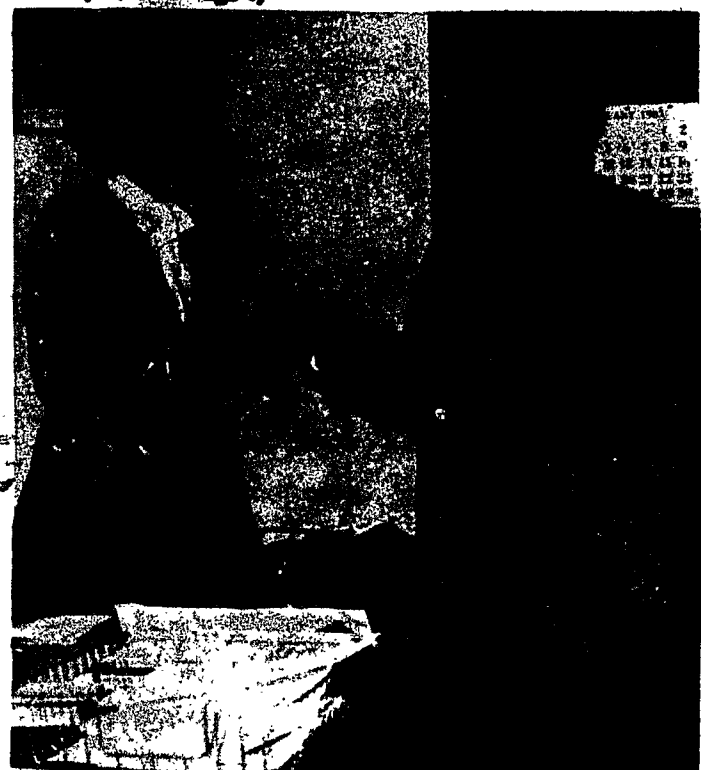

Twenty-two persons have been nominated for the 11-member board of Hancock County's newly formed United Fund. Elections will be at the group's first annual general meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday at Coast Electric Power Assn. The general public is invited to participate.

Six organizations have joined the fund: the American Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Retarded Children, Mental Health, and Blood Bank. Information president Ray Gordon is hopeful that more groups will avail themselves of this one step toward relief opportunity.

Nominees for the board are Mrs. John McDonald, Charles Carver, Jr., Powell Glass, Jr.,

Thomas L. Logue, W. Ray Gordon, Mrs. C.R. Beyer, Walter Turcotte, Jr., Warren Carver, William M. Frisbie, Rev. Lamar Martin, Lee C. Choppin, Victor Frankiewicz, James Collins, Alan J. Sarret, Mgr. James J. Hamon, Rev. Charles Johnson, John K. McKenna, Albert J. Brignac, Fritz Harris, Omar A. Haas, Joseph S. Price and R. A. Robinson.

A temporary organization has been operating since September with solicitations limited to persons working at Mississippi Test Operations, where almost $1,000 has been raised. Application has been made for a charter of incorporation with Walter F. Turcotte, Warren Carver and Powell Glass, Jr., as incorporators.

Looking at '67

Among the Mississippi newspapers with which we exchange two of the better are the Aberdeen Examiner and the Deer Creek Pilot, both of whom would be classified as of the non-conservative school. Last week both pushed hard to build up support for State Treasurer William Winter of Mississippi's next governor, using words such as "brilliant" to describe him.

With the next gubernatorial election more than two years off it may be that these liberals are "shooting before they see the white of their eyes". In any event Mr. Winter has so far shown no outstanding leadership ability. He has talked a lot, but his job is basically a routine one.

As of now we have no idea whom we will support for governor of Mississippi two and a half years from now. It might well be Congressman John Bell Williams, of whom the Examiner and Pilot are so afraid. After all the congressman was the only major elected official willing to stand up and be counted during the presidential election last fall. And Lt. Gov. Carroll Gartin has stuck with the liberals and has occupied positions above the bookkeeper type Mr. Winter holds.

It's poll tax time again and it's also registration time for those who want to vote in Bay St. Louis's municipal elections. Notwithstanding that frequently one legitimately feels his vote doesn't count, like us Goldwater supporters last November, recent local elections have shown the following: a supervisor elected by three votes, a school bond issue beaten by 54 votes and another passed by five votes. If you want to be a part of the community in which you live register now, both at the court house and at city hall, and pay your poll taxes. Time is running out.

A Conservative View By James J. Kilpatrick

The U.S. Supreme Court wound up on Jan. 18 and tossed one of the wildest pitches it yet has thrown in the whole field of law affecting race relations. The opinion was characteristic of the mound performance one has come to expect of the Court whenever a "civil rights" defendant comes along. The pitch is in the batter's ear, or behind his back, or over the grandstand. In this particular case, Mr. Justice Goldberg hung two strikes on a defendant and then walked him. It was quite a day in the nation's highest court.

The case arose in Baton Rouge on Dec. 14, 1961, when 23 Negro students from Southern University were jailed on charges arising out of a lunch-counter demonstration. On the following day, the Rev. B. B. Cox, a field secretary of the Congress of Racial Equality, took charge of a protest by 2,000 students. Over the plaintive objections of local police, he marched them from the old State Capitol Building, three abreast, to a point immediately across the street from the courthouse jail.

At that point—and this was crucial to the decision—the local police chief, Wingate White, told Cox he would have to keep his army where it was. Standing in the rain, the 2,000 demonstrators broke into songs, cheers and hollers. Inside the jail, the 23 defendants responded with songs and shouts of their own. Anticipating an ugly situation, Chief White ordered the demonstrators to disperse. When Cox refused, the situation did in fact get ugly. Police fired tear gas and chased the mob from the courthouse area.

On the following day, Cox was arrested for disturbing the peace, blocking the sidewalks, and picketing before a courthouse. He subsequently was fined $700 and given nine months in jail on the first two charges, and fined $5,000 and given a year in jail on the third. On Jan. 18, the Supreme Court reversed all three convictions.

Few persons will quarrel with the court's decision in the first two convictions. The Louisiana statute on breach of the peace is so broad that it permits free speech that the court approves but prohibits free speech that the cops don't like. The law on blocking sidewalks gives some privileges to labor unions that it denies to others. It was the question of a third-conviction majority in the third case that saw four members of the court calling "Duck."

The Louisiana law fairly prohibits demonstration "in or near" a courthouse by persons having no intent to interfere with the administration of justice or to influence any action in the performance of its duty. This law was not, as you might conclude, one of the old-fashioned trumped-up statutes reminiscent of the ones of the federal government. It was enacted by Louisiana in 1950; and it was patterned word for word upon a statute enacted by the Congress the preceding year to apply to Federal courthouses. The federal law was requested by the Supreme Court itself, and as Mr. Justice Clark was to point out, was even drafted by members of the court.

This fact created a dilemma for Mr. Justice Goldberg, who shared with Warren, Douglas, Brennan and Stewart the horrid thought of seeing a CORE secretary actually sent to jail. Mr. Justice Goldberg was equal to the occasion. The defendant's first argument was that the statute was invalid on its face as an infringement upon free speech; the Court rejected that contention. It has been said, "I asked the dissenting Justice Clark, 'that an author is always pleased with his own work.'" Then the defendant argued that he hadn't really intended to influence judicial officers by massing 2,000 demonstrators on the street below them; the court rejected that contention, too.

That left only the defense that Police Chief White had permitted Cox's demonstrators to gather where they did, 100 feet from the courthouse, and that Cox's subsequent arrest thus amounted to "entrapment." With a glad huzzah, Mr. Justice Goldberg and his four brethren seized upon this argument, hurled the law and the evidence out of the park, and set the record free.

Mr. Justice Clark was scandalized: "If the Chief's action be consent, I never knew until today that a law enforcement official—city, state, or national—could forgive a breach of the criminal laws. I missed that in my law school, in my practice, and for two years while I was head of the criminal division of the Department of Justice. I have always been taught that this nation was dedicated to freedom under law, not under mobs. Our concept of equal justice encompasses no such protection as the court gives Cox today."

Justices White and Harlan, in a separate dissent, called the Goldberg opinion a "remarkable enunciation" of the Louisiana law. It remained for Mr. Justice Black to lash his string brethren in a stinging opinion supporting Cox's conviction. His statement is too fine to be compressed in the space remaining here; let me come back to it later. For its fairness to the court, this should be said: despite some of the wild pitches of the past, certain passages in the Goldberg opinion, coupled with Black's emphatic endorsement, strongly suggest that the Court's attitude is moving this way with militant demonstrators. Some interesting things are happening in this legal forum, especially in the case of Mr. Justice Black, and a Court that has seemed to lose control may yet get it back.

That left only the defense that Police Chief White had permitted Cox's demonstrators to gather where they did, 100 feet from the courthouse, and that Cox's subsequent arrest thus amounted to "entrapment." With a glad huzzah, Mr. Justice Goldberg and his four brethren seized upon this argument, hurled the law and the evidence out of the park, and set the record free.

I missed that in my law school, in my practice, and for two years while I was head of the criminal division of the Department of Justice. I have always been taught that this nation was dedicated to freedom under law, not under mobs. Our concept of equal justice encompasses no such protection as the court gives Cox today."

Justices White and Harlan, in a separate dissent, called the Goldberg opinion a "remarkable enunciation" of the Louisiana law. It remained for Mr. Justice Black to lash his string brethren in a stinging opinion supporting Cox's conviction. His statement is too fine to be compressed in the space remaining here; let me come back to it later. For its fairness to the court, this should be said: despite some of the wild pitches of the past, certain passages in the Goldberg opinion, coupled with Black's emphatic endorsement, strongly suggest that the Court's attitude is moving this way with militant demonstrators. Some interesting things are happening in this legal forum, especially in the case of Mr. Justice Black, and a Court that has seemed to lose control may yet get it back.

That left only the defense that Police Chief White had permitted Cox's demonstrators to gather where they did, 100 feet from the courthouse, and that Cox's subsequent arrest thus amounted to "entrapment." With a glad huzzah, Mr. Justice Goldberg and his four brethren seized upon this argument, hurled the law and the evidence out of the park, and set the record free.

90 traffic mishaps during '64

Ninety automobile accidents produced a total of $40,865 in property damages in Bay St. Louis during 1964, according to the annual report of Police Chief Lathan Garriga.

Reckless driving and running stop signs appeared to be the leading cause of mishaps with 21 charges lodged against motorists for the former and 21 for the latter. There were 16 charges of failing to yield right of way, 11 of running a light and eight each of driving while under the influence and following too close. Four were charged with speeding and one pedestrian was killed during the year.

Bay police investigated 1,380 complaints and escorted 68 funerals. One hundred persons were jailed on various charges in 1964: 27 for public drunk, 19 for drunkenness and disturbing the peace; 15 on DWI and eight on assault and battery.

Ten complaints of breaking and entering a business netted two arrests and one was arrested on nine investigations of breaking and entering a home. Three were held on one attempted burglary complaint and two arrests resulted on two rape complaints. Two automobiles were reported stolen with one arrest and two were arrested in the recovery of two stolen cars.

failed not so well going under 72-60 in the first round. In the opening period of their 18 point victory over Carver VCI overconfidence let them score a bare 11-10 advantage going into the second. Coach Willie Bradley pep talked the Tigerettes back into a team and they blasted second and third quarter scores of 27-17 and 36-21. Tigerettes Annie Haynes and Marilyn Price were leading pointers with 20 and 10, respectively.

Drawing a bye for the first round of the tournament, the VCI girls had no trouble with their Randolph opponents in the semifinals. They forged steadily ahead with quarter leads of 11-7, 22-12 and 31-22. Marilyn Price starred for Jones with 16 points while Gladys Mullins and Ann Mitchell gathered in 10 apiece.

The Jones boys' team took a single point lead over Randolph in the initial stanza of their losing fight, but the team from Pass Christian poured on the coal after the first period to make it 32-29 at halftime and 55-29 after the third. VCI's Robert Whavers pitched in an unusual high of 38 points, but it wasn't enough to save the day.

Valena C. Jones squads will be off active duty until Feb. 2 when both boys and girls will play Locker High at Wiggins.
